

DAGON HAT OF THE POPE

The “mitre” shaped hat that is frequently worn by the Pontiff is the same symbol as that of the “fish” god “Dagon” of Babylonian times. The god name “Dagon”, is just too close to “Dragon” for coincidence.

The Temple of the Dagon god is referred to by Jonathan in (1Maccabees 10:84,11:4/1Sam. 5:2-5)

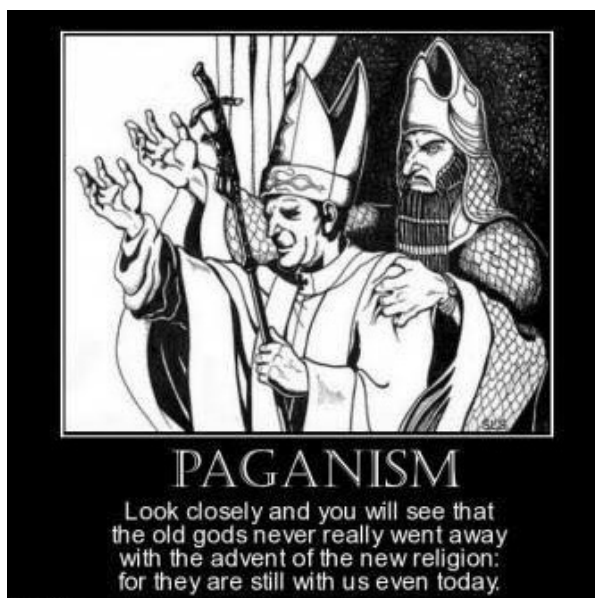

Dagon god

It is not a coincidence that the “tiara crown”, which the Pope often wears is identical to the crown worn by gods and fallen angels shown in Assyrian tablets.

1Chr. 10:10 “And they put his armor in the house of their gods and fastened his head in the house of Dagon.”

Jgs. 16:23 “Now the lords of the Philistines assembled to offer a great sacrifice to Dagon their god, and to rejoice, for they said, Our god has given Samson our enemy into our hands.”

Josh. 15:41 “and Gederoth, Beth-dagon and Naamah and Makkedah; sixteen cities with their villages.”

Josh. 19:27 “And it turned toward the east to Beth-dagon, and reached to Zebulun, and to the valley of Iphthahel northward to Beth-emek and Neiel; then it proceeded on north to Cabul,”

The Pallium garment which the Pope wears over his shoulders is the same as the one worn by the pagan priests of Greece and Rome before Christianity was ever heard of.

The Papal procession with the Pontiff sitting in a chair being carried by men is another duplication of what the heathens did when they celebrated with their high priests and Kings in Egypt. Even the fans used to comfort the Pope in these processions are the same “flabellum” fans (mystic fan of Bacchus), the heathen Egyptians used.
